Many tools and features in Photoshop are available for both individual use and the use of a group. Group refers to a collection of people who work together to accomplish a specific goal. These tools let you share your Photoshop sessions to other individuals who are signed in and connected to your Photoshop account. Photoshop also offers color management tools, which you can use when you create files for output to the web or another output device, such as a web-based template. The ColorSync technology in the program provides automatic color coordination so that each device uses the color space of the device it is being output to, without requiring you to preprogram the colors or create individual profiles. For Photoshop and other programs, have your computer's operating system automatically update when a newer version becomes available.
